

OIL & GAS AFRICA

2016

LOGISTICS CONFERENCE

The Oil & Gas Logistics Africa conference takes a fresh look at identifying and overcoming the challenges to getting things done in and off Africa. Partly based on the latest PwC 10 year Africa Oil and Gas Review, it will introduce some new approaches to establishing and maintaining effective and resilient supply chains, including the imaginative use of aviation to sustain operations.

To achieve the goals, we have put together a range of superbly cross complimenting experts in the Logistics field.

David Sineke, Engen David is Research Analyst at Engen South Africa, and is a graduate of the UCT Graduate School of Business.

With over 19 years of research into the African market, David is uniquely positioned to bring a perspective to the effects of proper logistical planning to the Oil & Gas industry as whole. He will cover the supply chain challenges facing the roll-out of cleaner fuels in RSA.

Shirley Schmidt, Afrishore. Shirley is a director of Afrishore Shipping, and logistics & supply company based in Mossel Bay and Cape Town. Experienced in logistic project management and port call management as well as specialised marine consultancy services, she will address the conference on how delegates can "think differently" about logistics in emerging markets, using local solutions for global clients.

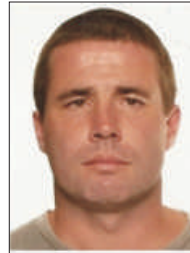

JULY 13 & 14

CULLINAN HOTEL V & A WATERFRONT CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA

Top Speakers for Conference

Chris Bredenhann. Chris joined Price Waterhouse Coopers in 1990, and has been a partner at PwC's Advisory Division in Cape Town since July 1999 where he is responsible for delivering risk management, internal audit and process improvement services to clients. He is the Energy industry leader for PwC Southern Africa and the PwC Africa Oil & Gas Advisory leader.

Simon O'Toole. World Bank Consultant. Currently Simon is an advisor to The Ministry of Petroleum and Mineral Resources in Somalia as well as various other high profile WB clients.

Simons vast Oil & Gas logistical experience includes Geophysical Project Manager at Terraseis International, Senior Geophysicist at ION Geophysical and Party Manager at OHM surveys

These top speakers, coupled with a broad based selection of speakers and participants from all relevant sectors of the industry will have one goal - to inform and update all participants in the event. From consumers to suppliers. From multi-national corporations and para-statals to small, focussed highly specialised and skilled service providers.

The conference provides a combined opportunity for both suppliers of goods & services as well as utilisers to meet, network and hear their peers discussing problems and solutions at a high level.

Oil & Gas Logistics Africa 2016 - one of the best marketing opportunities of the year.

EXHIBITION

Highly targeted exhibitions have been used very successfully to reach the exact person or company to maximise sales potential with little or no wasted investment.

Oil & Gas Logistics Africa 2016 will be no different and will be where your opportunity comes to the fore - a growing but very specifically aimed exhibition reaching the most influential people in the Oil & Gas support industry in sub-Saharan Africa.

A captive audience of delegates who will be channelled through the well laid out Exhibition at least four times per day. This, with the other networking opportunities that are being put at your disposal, make Oil & Gas Logistics Africa 2016 one of the best marketing opportunities of the year.

All exhibitors automatically qualify for free attendance to the conference, with the exhibition open only to delegates who attend the conference. This is unique exposure for exhibitors to top quality African delegations within the Gas and Power regeneration industry.
